Government, Not Divine, To Get Vanderbilt Estate

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 6 (AP).—The Frederick W. Vanderbilt estate, sought by Father Divine for a "heaven," is going to become government property instead.

This was disclosed by President Roosevelt shortly before he left for Washington after a week-end at his home here.

Mr. Roosevelt said the 250-acre estate for which the negro cult leader negotiated last August, would be given to the government this spring by the present owner, Mrs. James Van Alen of Newport, R. I.

He said the government wants especially the part of the estate lying between the Hudson river and the Albany post road because the house thereon is a prime example of 1890 home construction and because the trees, some of them 200 years old, emphasize the magnificence of the property.

The President said a small admittance fee would be charged to pay for the upkeep.

Father Divine already has established one of his "heavens" directly across the Hudson from Hyde Park, the Roosevelt ancestral estate, and his followers had hoped to make the Vanderbilt property an even more elaborate resort.

Gravell Employees To Continue Path Set by Their Boss

Fifteen Key Men Receive Bulk of Three Millions; Permanent Memorial To Be Established

Ambler, Pa., Feb. 6 (AP).—Enriched by the millions left by their paint manufacturer boss, the key employees of J. Harvey Gravell plan to carry on the traditions and business policies he fostered.

The 15 who were bequeathed the bulk of Gravell's $3,000,000 estate disclosed through a spokesman that there would be no change in the operation of the American Chemical Paint Company plant here.

Grateful for the final generous gesture of the man who one Christmas gave his workers $100,000 to pay off their debts, the legatees said they intended to establish a permanent memorial to him.

Standing to benefit handsomely even after estate and inheritance taxes reduce the fortune, the employees, most of whom have large families, indicated the windfall would alter the course of their lives.

"I'm going to send my sons to college," said Frank Scardino after the news of Gravell's will was announced yesterday.

"Darn Well Fixed"

Grinning broadly and pointing to the overall he wears as plant foreman, Scardino added: "You see, now I'm darn well fixed."

"My wife and I always wanted to travel," remarked another. "The only trouble is to get the time off."

Miss Clara Bordona, 32, who was Gravell's secretary, received the news quietly, and with praise for a "fine man."

"As far as I'm concerned, I would rather have him back than all the money in the world," she said. "I intend to keep on working for the company."

Gravell, who died December 8 at the age of 59, wrote that it was his purpose to place control and ownership of the plant in the hands of his business associates and employees.

The stock was placed in trust for the 15 employees for 10 years. After that they will own it outright.

Believing that the wives made his men good employees, Gravell once gave $300 to each of the "home-makers."

American Chemical Paint Company has branches in Toronto, Canada, Detroit and Newcastle, Del., but only employees of the Ambler plant were named in Gravell's will.

U. S. Housing Loans

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP).—The United States Housing Authority announced today approval of loans totaling $15,857,000 for 12 communities for construction of low rent housing projects. The loans will defray 90 per cent of the estimated $17,626,000 total cost of 16 projects. Among the cities were: Bridgeport, Conn., $2,282,000 for 510 units; New Britain, Conn., $1,403,000 for 340 units; New Haven, Conn., $1,552,000 for 318 units.

Tweedsmuir Is Injured

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (AP).—Lord Tweedsmuir, 64, governor-general of Canada, suffered a concussion today as the result of a fall. An announcement from Government House, however, said he was resting comfortably after the accident.

Property Under Consideration for School at Woodstock

Freeman Photo

Religious Order May Start School, Archbishop Says

Head of Woodstock Group Says Byrdcliffe Might Be Site; Says Four Sisters Missing

Plans are under way it was learned today to establish a school for boys at Woodstock. The school would be part of a program, now under consideration by Archbishop Francis who last summer set up a retreat on the side of Overlook mountain near Meade's Mountain House.

The fact that such a plan has been under consideration for some time was also indicated in an announcement today that four sisters identified with the religious order of Archbishop Francis were supposed to have set sail for this country last August from Poland.

No word has been received from the four since they announced their intentions of coming to Woodstock and it is now believed that they are being delayed by Nazi officials somewhere in Europe.

Negotiations for one of three properties which would be suitable for the proposed school have not yet reached the point to warrant an official announcement, the archbishop said this morning but he is hopeful of establishing the school by next summer.

The Whitehead property at Byrdcliffe, is among those considered, it was learned, and it is understood that two other properties within the village limits would also be suitable for the school. It is understood also that the Byrdcliffe property might also be used, if found available, even if another property is secured in the village.

The school would be started, it was learned, first for summer sessions but the ultimate aim is to make it a permanent institution. If Byrdcliffe is found available it would preclude the task of making extensive renovations, since many of the buildings were built originally by Ralph Radcliffe Whitehead, one of the founders of the Woodstock colony, for use as studios and workshops.

Byrdcliffe Facilities

Facilities at Byrdcliffe include a large frame building now known as the Villetta, an auditorium and several smaller buildings. This site would be especially adaptable for use as a summer school.

It is understood that the school would offer courses in the arts and crafts and would be affiliated with a school of long-established reputation in New England. It

Red Asks Votes ★ ★ ★ And 'Eyes' Congress

New York, Feb. 6 (AP).—In the first election of 1940 to have the Roosevelt New Deal as the only major issue, Earl Browder, the Communist leader under a 4-year prison sentence for passport fraud, sought a congressional seat today.

He was opposed by both M. Michael Edelstein, a Tammany Democrat declared by Rep. James H. Fay to be the President's choice, and by Louis Lefkowitz, Republican.

It was a special election for the place in the House of Representatives vacated by the death of Rep. William I. Sirovich, Democrat. Polling hours were from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. (EST) and a total vote of around 20,000, from an eligible list of about 37,000, was predicted.

Council Will Get Request for Pound

If Bid Is Granted, Barn at City Home Might Be Used for Purpose

The common council at its regular monthly meeting this evening will be asked to establish a dog pound and appoint a dog warden. Just what action the council will take on the request is not known.

The last time the city had a dog pound was in 1928 during an outbreak of rabies when a pound was established for a brief period in Forsyth Park.

If a pound is established in the city there is some talk of using a barn on the City Home property for that purpose.

Another matter that will undoubtedly come up for discussion at the meeting is the question of pensions for city employees. Efforts are being made to have city employees become members of the state retirement system. The proposal was recently voted down by the Kingston Patrolmen's Association who favor the continuation of the present police pension system.

Pelley Clears Dies

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP).—William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirt Legion, dropped in on the Dies committee today after months of silence to give its chairman, Rep. Dies (D., Tex.), "an absolutely clean bill of health" with regard to charges of "collusion" between Dies and himself.

The slender, goateed resident of Asheville, N. C., who had long been hunted by the committee, surrendered himself to Robert Stripling, clerk, for service of a subpoena and then went before a closed session of the group to tell what he knew about certain letters, allegedly forged with his name, which recently were brought forth as evidence of a connection between Dies and the Legion chieftain. A few minutes later Pelley talked with reporters.

12 Persons Arrested

Detroit, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today arrested 11 persons in Detroit and one in Milwaukee on a charge of recruiting soldiers in 1937 and 1938 for the Spanish republican army. Ten men and one woman were taken into custody. They were indicted secretly last Saturday by Judge Edward J. Moinet in United States district court here.

Treasury officials estimated that the minimum federal gift tax share to localities.

Nehru Asks Anglo War Aims Include India's Freedom

Dominant Party Head Says Indians Want Nothing of Compromise; Is Gandhi's Aide

Allahabad, India, Feb. 3 (Delayed) (AP).—In the quiet of his study, Jawaharlal Nehru, president of the dominant congress party, today demanded that Britain include India's independence as one of her "war aims."

"We want no compromise with (Indian) fundamentals," declared Nehru, who is second only to Mohandas K. Gandhi in the leadership of millions of Hindus.

Two days after this dispatch was written, a conference between Gandhi and Viceroy Lord Linlithgow at New Delhi failed to formulate any sort of agreement, apparently leaving the Indian position as outlined by Nehru unchanged.

Outlines Position

The 50-year-old Nehru, who has fought side by side with Gandhi for almost a quarter of a century, outlined his position thus:

"The problem of Indian independence is not due to the European war although the rush of new events has accentuated the old problem."

"India could cooperate in defending freedom and democracy provided war aims were clearly stated. Imperialism must be abandoned if world freedom is sought. Therefore India has requested a declaration of (British) war aims involving Indian independence with a constituent assembly to frame a constitution."

"The old conception of a grant of dominion status is inapplicable to India and in any event must give way to a wider ideal of world cooperation which India gladly supports."

"The real question is one of transfer of power to the Indian people with the subordination of vested interests to the popular will."

"British policy continues to preserve these interests. Hence, presently a compromise is unlikely."

By asking that India's independence be included as a British war aim, the congress party has insisted Britain take an immediate and positive stand in the matter. Thus far Britain has refused to do this although indicating a willingness to discuss the independence question after the war.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP).—The position of the Treasury February 3: Receipts $36,866,309.11. Expenditures $34,861,142.84. Net balance $2,310,226,676.06. Working balance included $1,598,135,948.34. Customs receipts for month $2,850,359.95. Receipts for fiscal year (July 1) $3,141,745,313.13. Excess of expenditures $2,487,027,451.50. Gross debt $42,135,096,553.49. Increase over previous day $9,683,892.29. Gold assets $17,947,590,900.18.

Pari-Mutuels Hearing

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 6 (AP).—Legislative fiscal committees today set February 26 for a public hearing on all pending bills to initiate pari-mutuel betting, one of the most controversial issues before the state lawmakers. The hearing was called as efforts to obtain a "satisfactory" measure brought amendment of one bill to reduce by half the proposed two per cent tax share to localities.

New Bombings in Islands, Gandhi Stand Are Headaches

Mohandas Calls His Conference With Viceroy Linlithgow Failure; Paris Urges Quick Aid to Finland

(By The Associated Press)

India and Ireland provided new wartime headaches for Britain today as its controversy with Japan over seized German seamen seemed nearer solution.

A new wave of bombings attributed to the Irish Republican army swept England and Ireland seth with anti-British feeling as the time neared for execution of two I. R. A. members tomorrow at Birmingham, England, for a terrorist bombing last August.

The British hope office, last resort for clemency, declined to grant a reprieve for the men and John Dulanty, Ireland's high commissioner in London was instructed to appeal to Prime Minister Chamberlain for clemency.

Bombs which police said were planted by the Irish Republican Army exploded in London, Birmingham and Manchester.

Four persons were injured by two bombs in London's Euston Station. Two were hurt in the Birmingham blast, none in Manchester.

After an important conference with the viceroy of India, Mohandas K. Gandhi, revered Indian nationalist leader, told of a "wide gulf" separating Britain and India over Indian self-government demands.

Gandhi held his conference with the viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, a failure and said Britain still refused to grant immediate Indian independence.

Meanwhile, the Japanese foreign minister disclosed Britain had agreed to hand over nine of 21 German seamen seized from the Japanese liner Asama Maru and Japan agreed to refrain from accepting as ship passengers any Germans eligible for military duty.

There were indications, however, that this formula was not completely satisfactory to Japan.

Goaded by German claims of sweeping success against allied and neutral shipping recently, the British admiralty announced that 42,615 tons of shipping were sunk by enemy action last week. Germany declared yesterday that 200,000 tons were sunk between January 21 and 31.

Roosevelt Backs Administration's Record Against Critics With Figures

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP).—President Roosevelt backed his administration's record against its critics' fault-finding today with figures intended to prove that seven years of the New Deal had meant greater prosperity for America.

He recited off the statistics at a press conference yesterday at Hyde Park, N. Y., before ending a weekend visit at his family home. He returned here this morning.

From a table prepared by several government agencies, he read data which recorded, between 1932 and 1939, an advance of 71 per cent in national income—from $40,000,000,000 to $68,000,000,000—and tremendous strides upward in such categories as wages and salaries, farm income, dividend receipts, non-agricultural employment and exports.

At one point, he said the sta-

Says Every Unit Must Take Cuts

More Than Two Millions Taken From Justice, State and Commerce Departments

Charges Graft

J. Edgar Hoover Says Corruption Is Found in Miami Area

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP).—The House appropriations committee cut $2,285,010 today from President Roosevelt's $109,664,010 request for expenses of the state, commerce and justice departments and the federal courts during the year beginning July 1.

"Every unit of the government must bear some proportion of the retrenchments," said the committee in submitting the revised figures.

The reduction brought to $196,300,000 the amount slashed from presidential estimates in a half dozen appropriation measures now before Congress.

The $107,379,000 bill for the three departments and the courts, reported to the House for immediate consideration, contained funds for such activities as counter-espionage, anti-trust investigations and the 1940 census. The total was $3,442,859 below appropriations for the current year.

In one slash, the committee refused to allow more than $175,000 for operating the reciprocal trade system on the ground that Congress had not yet authorized continuation of the program beyond June 12.

President Roosevelt asked $225,000.

Small Cuts

Making small cuts in almost every activity, the committee allowed two increases beyond what the Chief Executive asked. One was an additional $41,000 beyond Mr. Roosevelt's request for the enforcement of anti-trust laws, making the total provided $1,250,000. The other was restoration of $30,000 of a $50,000 cut proposed by the budget bureau in the appropriation for patent office salaries, as compared with what was given this year.

The committee said it would have been disposed to increase the anti-trust appropriation further had it not been for the present state of the budget. The patent office, it said, was making a profit on its activities and the contemplated reduction would put its work in arrears.

A total of $9,910,000 was allowed the Federal Bureau of Investigation, representing a cut of $22,000. Of the total approved $2,488,000 was for emergency counter-espionage, counter-sabotage and enforcement of the neutrality act.

With this latter sum and $1,475,000 provided in the emergency defense, the bureau plans to employ an additional 514 persons, including 260 new agents. The amount disallowed affects the bureau's automobile purchase program only and will result among other things in acquisition of one less armored car.

The amounts recommended by the White House, and the amounts approved by the committee, for the three departments and the courts follow:

State $20,841,000 and $20,162,000; commerce $34,524,430 and $34,080,500; justice $43,200,820 and $42,391,000; the judiciary $11,097,954 and $10,745,500.

The state and commerce department appropriations represented decreases of $1,624,840 and $4,046,999 under the current year's figures.

The justice department figure was $1,961,640 over the current year, due chiefly to the FBI increases, and the courts won an additional $267,340 over this year.

Charges Graft

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has announced that his staff found "evidence indicating local graft, corruption, and inefficiency" in the Miami, Fla., area.

This charge and another that police authorities of the resort failed to cooperate with the justice department's investigation, were made before a house appropriations subcommittee in testimony made public today.

Hoover declared the FBI had tried to work with local authorities, but received "little or no actual cooperation."

"Police officers in that area have been instructed," he charged, "not to come near the representatives of the FBI. They have been told that if they were seen going in or coming out of our offices they would be blacklisted."

London, Feb. 6 (AP).—It was stated authoritatively today that meat rationing would be introduced in Britain March 11.

Organized Taxpayers Call For 'Expense Laws' Repeal

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 6 (AP)—Organized taxpayers called upon Governor Lehman and the Legislature today for repeal of "unnecessary expense laws" enacted in New York's "spending years."

Opening an "economic" battle to be climaxed at Monday's public hearing on the proposed $396,700,000 state budget, a citizens' and taxpayers' conference representing tax groups throughout the state demanded an "immediate inquiry" to eliminate such "spending" legislation.

The investigation, proposed in an unanimously approved resolution, would be conducted by a commission composed of three appointees of the governor, three of the Legislature, and five of the "recognized taxpayer economy organizations."

The conference, directing a main attack at the state's "sacred cow" of education and its costs to the taxpayer, also demanded:

A legislative investigation into "subversive teachings and subversive text books widely employed in the state school system with full knowledge of the education department."

Application of "business management" to the schools which "show no improvement in the product despite huge increase in costs."

Overshadowing all other legislative action which was confined to adoption of minor bills, the taxpayers' conference, sponsored by the New York State Economic Council, asserted:

"Any realistic approach to the question of taxation, budget and government costs in the state of New York requires immediate downward and eliminative revisions of some and perhaps many of the spending laws placed on the statute books during the spending years."

The investigation commission, proposed to the conference by Tom R. Hutton, editor of the Binghamton Press, would be unsalaried, have subpoena powers and report before next January 1 recommendations "designed to revise and eliminate unnecessary state expenditures."

The taxpayers also directed an open communication to the state Board of Regents asking they "reconcile the employment of subversive texts and subversive teaching practices in the schools of this state with their oaths of office, with sound practices and with the maintenance of our form of government."

Democrats Call Upon F. D. R., Only Get Friendly Greeting

Becomes Life Member Of Society of Engineers

Sidney K. Clapp of 197 Washington avenue, veteran assistant engineer connected with the New York Board of Water Supply, will be one of the guests of honor at a meeting of the Mohawk-Hudson Section, American Society of Civil Engineers, to be held in the old chapel of Union College, Schenectady, Thursday night, February 8.

Completing 35 years as a member of the society, Mr. Clapp was awarded a life membership in the organization at the annual meeting held in New York city January 17.

Mr. Clapp has been connected with the New York Board of Water supply since its early days and has been intimately connected with the city's big water projects during the intervening years. He has been connected with the work of the Board at Ellenville since the office was moved to that place when preparations began for the work of constructing the dam at Lackawack as part of the new Delaware water project.

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—Members of the Democratic National Committee and Democratic state chairmen got handclaps and some friendly words from President Roosevelt today—but apparently not the slightest hint of his political intentions.

The called at the White House merely to pay respects and had no opportunity for any real discussion with Mr. Roosevelt. This afternoon they were invited to a White House tea.

Although Mr. Roosevelt made it plain yesterday he was tired of attempts to smoke him out on a third term, a number of committee members still were talking strongly of the chances of persuading him to run.

They had lingered in town after yesterday's committee meeting which picked Chicago for the nominating convention.

Charles Sawyer of Ohio, for instance, told reporters that Mr. Roosevelt carry his state.

Clearly Dominant

"I think Roosevelt sentiment is clearly dominant," he said. "But certainly I wouldn't say the Republicans would win if the Democrats chose any other candidate. We couldn't win with just anybody, however."

Mrs. Lucretia Grady, committeewoman from California, said she had visited many southern and western states recently declared she had found "third term sentiment overwhelming."

National Chairman James A. Farley showed up for the informal White House reception and told newsmen afterward that "everything is under control, more or less." He said he would do nothing for several weeks about setting up a committee on arrangements for the national convention.

He said he was going to Florida in a few days for a couple of weeks of rest.

Farley was authorized yesterday to see the date of the convention in the midwest metropolises.

Letters

Rep. Frank E. Hook (above) (D-Mich.) refused before the house rules committee in Washington to "concede anything" to the invalidity of letters purporting to link Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) of the House un-American affairs committee to William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt leader. Hook placed the documents in the Congressional Record.

M. J. Flynn Dies Of Heart Attack

Michael J. Flynn, 84, was suddenly stricken with a fatal heart attack early this morning in the bathroom at his home, 336 Clinton avenue. Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeek, who was called by the police, pronounced him dead. Coroner Howard B. Humiston of Kerhonkson, gave his verdict as death due to a heart attack.

Mr. Flynn was a well known resident of this city and for several years he and his sister, Mrs. Helen Flynn, who survives him have conducted a rooming house on Clinton avenue.

This morning about 7 o'clock he was heard to enter the bathroom and then was heard to fall to the floor. Other occupants of the house ran into the bathroom and found him collapsed on the floor and notified the police who called Dr. Van Gaasbeek.

Mr. Flynn was a charter member of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society and a member of St. Joseph's Church. Funeral services will be held from the McAuliffe Funeral Home, 86 Pearl street, on Thursday morning at 8:45 o'clock and thence to St. Joseph's Church where at 9 o'clock a high Mass of requiem will be offered. County to Have Hobby Exhibit

A "Hobby Show" will be held by the Home Bureau in co-operation with the numerous other organizations, it was announced today. For several years various communities in the state have held hobby shows and in at least one place it proved so popular that it has been repeated for three years.

Representatives of eight organizations, including the Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A., Garden Clubs and others, met at the Home Bureau office Monday afternoon and took up the preliminary work of organization. Mrs. Willard Jenkins of New Paltz was elected general chairman and the general committee will be announced shortly. Town committees also will be named.

March 29 and 30 have been set as the dates for the show and the place, the third floor of the Bernstein building, corner of Wall and North Front streets.

Entries will be received from individuals as well as groups, and March 9 has been set as the last day on which entries will be received.

According to Miss Spain of the College of Home Economics at Ithaca, who is assisting Miss Parsons at the Home Bureau on features of the program in the county, hobbies shown need not necessarily be "satisfactory."

The object of the show is educational and to suggest to people ways in which they occupy their spare time and increase their interest and enjoyment in life.

Stock Market at Further Reduced Pace on Monday

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Steels today led the stock market on a quiet rallying jaunt.

The forenoon was spent in dawdling over an extremely narrow range. Dealings were the slowest of the year to date until buying in the hard metals eventually accelerated the pace a trifle.

Advances, near the final hour, ran to more than two points. Numerous issues, though, hugged a slim groove. Transfers were at the rate of about 500,000 shares.

Some thought was given to the possibility the current business recession might not have a great distance to go and that the recent flattening out may have been pretty well discounted by the stock list. Brokers suggested national politics was beginning to assume more importance market-wise than European war developments.

Bonds improved in spots. Foreign loans were trendless as were domestic commodities.

Favored were stocks of U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, duPont, Douglas Aircraft, Eastern Air Lines, Martin Parry, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Miami Copper and American Can.

Eastman Kodak backed away, along with U. S. gypsum.

Resistant to the curb were Aluminum of America, International Petroleum, Lake Shore and American Cyanamid "B."

The stock market continued to drag along Monday, only at a still further reduced pace, the volume of 410,000 shares being the lowest for a full day's session since July 10. Prices generally were lower and although changes were not great it is noted that 62 stocks made new lows for the year to date, while 29 made new highs. In the Dow-Jones averages, industrial stocks showed a loss for the day of .59 point, to 145.00; rails dropped .15 to 30.50 and utilities were off .06, to 24.68.

The American Iron & Steel Institute gives 71.7 per cent of capacity as the rate for steel production this week. This drop from the high point of 94.4 per cent reached in November has been forecast by the steady drop in Steel common stock which is now some 26 points below the high of September last.

There was a better tone in the commodity markets with a slight uptrend in the general level of staples, the Dow-Jones index being up .18 point for the day, just wiping out the decline of Saturday. With some mill buying and some professional support cotton futures closed three to 11 points higher. There were reports of extensive damage to European wheat crops and that grain rose 1/2 to 1 cent a bushel at Chicago. Corn advanced as much as 1 1/2 cents a bushel. There was improved sentiment in world sugars on confirmation of 42,000 tons of Cuban raws sold to Great Britain at compromise price of $1.50 cents a pound, f. o. b.

In the foreign markets averages were off as poor support caused some decline in prices toward the close. In Amsterdam domestic issues sold off in reports that government might force companies to subscribe to the new loan if such action were necessary. Paris Bourse was dull and turned weak toward the close.

American Woolen Co. had the best year since 1935, reporting net profit of $2,311,887, equal to $6.60 a preferred share, for the year ended December 31. This compares with a deficit of $4,911,502 in 1938.

S. S. Kresge Co. showed sharply increased earnings in 1939. For the year ended December 31 net was $10,450,624, or $1.89 a common share, vs. net of $8,997,051, or $1.63 a share in 1938. Westinghouse Air Brake also showed greatly increased earnings, net for 1939 being $2,765,629 against net of $993,816 in 1938. Net of Caterpillar Tractor for year ended December 31 was nearly double the previous year, $6,004,890, or $2.89 a share against $3,235,709, or $1.41 a share in 1938.

The SEC was told yesterday that two units of Middle West Corp., American Public Service Co. and Central and Southwest Utilities Co., will clear up arrears on their preferred stocks and soon fire a merger plan with the commission.

TIP FROM THE KAISER

It is an interesting letter that the former Kaiser Wilhelm is said to have written Poulney Bigelow of Malden-on-Hudson. He suggests a way to save Germany and Europe. The key is Finland.

"The magnificent stand of the Finns," he says, "has smashed the halo of Bolshevism and set people thinking—with the result that the wish for peace is gaining ground. The belligerents (on the western front) should stop fighting and join their forces to help the Finns. They should fight on one line to rid the world and civilization of Bolshevism."

This seems a far more rational plan for Germany than her present alliance with Russia. Culturally the Germans belong with the French and English. And it is quite possible that the democratic allies would welcome an alliance with Germany, to preserve western civilization and insure the peace of Europe, if the worst features of Nazism were abandoned.

But there's the rub. Adolf Hitler, the Nazi messiah, with a cabinet trained in his weird ideology, is still in complete control of Germany, and there is no reason to think that he would ever willingly surrender his power. So Europe stumbles on toward the edge of the precipice.

WHAT THE WAR'S ABOUT

A clear statement of what the western democracies of Europe are fighting for comes from John W. Wheeler-Bennett, member of the Royal Institute of National Affairs in London, who is now in America. He says:

"We are at war to destroy that aggressive, bullying spirit of the enemy, to defend the empire, to restore the wrongs done to Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland, and above all to vindicate the fundamentals of our faith—our individual freedoms."

"In a sense, this is a war for the liberation of the German people from the pagan cruelty, wanton mockery and dissimulation of a gangster clique."

CASEIN PLASTICS FROM MILK

Of more than passing interest to the farmers of the state is a bill introduced by Assemblyman Marble of Ontario County appropriating $10,000, the only amount needed, for the development of new casein plastics at the Geneva Experiment Station which would make use of the surplus milk in the state.

Supporters of the measure declare that if ten per cent of the casein wasted in skim milk in the United States alone were used, $98,000,000 casein plastics could be made and marketed. One half of this would be net profit to the farmers. The patent would be public service and available to any citizen of the United States.

Dr. D. C. Carpenter, plastics expert at the Geneva Experiment Station, states that dairy farmers have a definite interest in any enterprise that utilizes milk, be it paper, glue or plastic manufacture. The time when the only use of milk was as a food has passed. They are stretching out on new horizons. They have large herds that produce plenty of milk, that can find a place in industry in making new and better things. Industry has not foreseen that milk and still more milk was ready and waiting to be used as construction materials and has been prepared to use it as fast as it was available. This has been due partly to the depression through which we have been passing. Something must be done to get things moving again and it seems likely that the starting of research work financed by the state, in getting agriculture and industry working together is the logical answer. There is no reason why a casein plastic cannot be developed that can be molded rapidly and be as unbreakable as any of the new plastics made from other materials.

BIRDS AMID SKYSCRAPERS

A New York reporter who had never gone in much for bird study was surprised to learn that the metropolis, even in winter, is full of birds.

On Christmas Day, for example, between 7:30 a. m. and 5 p. m., a bird lover in Central Park saw and identified one merganser, one black-backed gull, 250 herring gulls, one hairy woodpecker and one downy, three chickadees, two white-breasted nuthatches, one grackle, five juncos, one field sparrow, six white-throated sparrows, and one each of fox, swamp, song and chipping sparrows. There were, of course, hundreds of English sparrows and thousands of starlings.

Those who know how and where to look have found that, in the dead of winter, there may be seen within 50 miles of New York 139 species and sub-species of birds. Loons and herons have been found near Brooklyn and one of the latter turned up last summer to startle spectators at the Lagoon of Nations fire display.

Other cities have similarly surprising bird visitors. Apparently you can study ornithology without going to the country or into the wilderness.

OPEN ROADS TO WINTER FUN

Snow removal from highways in western states has jumped in cost with the development of skiling and other winter sports on such a large scale. The statistical engineer of the Idaho Highway Department reports the cost nearly doubled in his state.

Where the snow is the thickest, the passes highest and normal traffic least is the place where the army of skiers want the service of the giant snow plows. Some of these are routes formerly closed through the winter. Last year, to keep snow off the state's main highways only, the department used 250 to 500 men, 172 trucks, five tractors, nine tractor plows, 24 graders, 17 power shovels, and 1,228,410 feet of snow fence for preventing drifts. The cost rose in five years from $143,531 to $228,795. It had been $277,861 in the winter of 1937-38, but dropped a year later because the total snow fall was light.

All this is for the clearance of primary roads. The demand for opening other roads will push it up.

Maybe they'll have to make the snow lovers pay a special road-clearing fee or bring along snow shovels and do some of the work themselves.

The glory of war in these progressive times consists in sinking planes and ships.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)
 BILE FLOW SLOW WHEN BODY IS INACTIVE

One of the things that formerly was difficult to understand was how some men ate enormous meals and had no trouble with liver or gall bladder while others who ate meals of ordinary size were troubled with indigestion, belching, desire to vomit, constipation, and other signs of a slow or sluggish liver and gall bladder. The explanation is that the heavy eater is one who is also active, takes plenty of exercise—riding, golfing, brisk walks, and the other sits at his desk all day and gets little or no exercise.

Nature meant that man should move about, bend his body, reach up and down, all of which not only squeezes the liver and gall bladder but also makes him breathe deeply. Deep breathing, by pressing the diaphragm (floor of chest and roof of abdomen) against the liver, squeezes it and increases the flow of bile.

Will bile not flow unless exercise is taken? Bile is manufactured and will flow into small intestine, into gall bladder, and from gall bladder also to small intestine, even if no exercise be taken. Bile, aside from its other uses, is Nature's purgative, and unless interfered with by tight corsets or by being surrounded with fat, will always be manufactured and flow, to some extent. But the amount made and rapidly with which it flows can greatly be influenced by exercise. In cases where exercise cannot be taken, extra bile in the form of bile salts, taken by mouth, stimulates bile flow.

Just how much bile is manufactured in twenty-four hours and how fast it flows is recorded by Dr. I. C. Zuckerman and associates, in American Journal of Digestive Diseases. A patient with a fistula—opening in duct carrying the bile—was observed when starved and no bile taken by mouth. Over a quart of bile was manufactured in the twenty-four hours.

In regard to the rate of flow, it was found that the hourly rate of flow during day and night was fairly regular. There was, however, a six hour interval during night and early morning (when patient was sleeping) when there was a noticeable decrease in the bile flow.

What does this teach us? It teaches us that when the body is completely at rest, bile flow is slower than when body is active. About two or three times a day if we would bend the body with knees straight or take a few long breaths we could increase the bile flow and prevent constipation.

Sales Increase

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—A $2,500,000 increase in 1939 retail sales over 1938 figures was estimated today by the commerce department, bringing the year's total to $37,950,000,000. Lower prices and smaller automotive sales, the department said, kept the aggregate about $2,000,000,000 below the 1937 recovery peak. The CIO said in its monthly business survey, however, that the 1940 outlook was less favorable. The congressional economy drive, it added, is the major "depressing" factor.

No. 128—Jacob Leonard

Although she was a small vessel designed for the express purpose of a helper-craft, the towboat "Jacob Leonard" served its various towboats faithfully for almost a quarter of a century on the Hudson river and, like many steamboats that were built for other owners, she ended her career in the service of the Cornell Steamboat Company running out of the Rondout creek.

The "Jacob Leonard" was built at New Baltimore, New York, by J. Baldwin in the year of 1872. Her wooden hull was 128 feet long, breadth of beam of 28 feet three inches, and depth of hold of six feet three inches. She was built for use as a towboat and had a gross tonnage rating of 105 and a net tonnage of 55. Her means of propulsion came from a cylinder diameter of 34 inches with an eight foot stroke, and she was capable of rendering efficient service as a helper to the larger towboats—especially in the upper reaches of the Hudson river where the water was exceptionally shallow in places.

Several years prior to 1872, the date which marked the building of the "Jacob Leonard," Robinson Towing Line had formed the Troy Towing Line with towboats purchased from several operators including Commodore Van Santvoord who had formed the towing business to enter the field of passenger transportation on the river. The larger towboats of the Troy Towing Line, the "Columbia," "Alida," "Mount Washing-

Democratic-Republican Hide-and-Seek Goes Its Merry Way With Farley's Announcement on Date

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1940)

Washington, Feb. 6.—The Democratic national committee and the Republican national committee are playing hide and seek with each other. The Democrats want to hold their national convention after the Republicans have held theirs. The Republicans want to wait and see whether President Roosevelt is drafted for a third term.

The first move in the game was an authorization by the Democratic national committee to let Chairman James A. Farley select the date. He immediately announced that the date will be selected the moment the Republicans have fixed a date.

The advantage in this by-play is with the Democrats for they obviously want a late convention and a short campaign because this will curtail the time of their opposition to make a case.

The Republicans, on the other hand, can easily fix a convention date, pick their candidate and postpone the making of a platform until after the Democrats have met. For, if the Democrats draft President Roosevelt, the whole Republican platform will be built around the idea of a dictatorship. All other issues will fade into insignificance.

The question of who shall be named by the Republicans to head the ticket is not at all related to what the Democrats do. From some standpoints, it would be wiser for the Republicans to select their candidate and begin to organize the campaign in June, irrespective of what the Democrats may do later. It's the platform and the emphasis which may have to be given the third term issue that may cause the Republicans embarrassment if the Democratic convention is held too long after the Republican conclave. Mayor Hague of Jersey City, one of the principal Democratic spokesmen at the national committee meeting here this week, thinks the convention should be held in September.

President Roosevelt has favored the holding of the Democratic convention as late as possible this year. His argument has been that the national campaigns are too long anyhow. From other quarters not so friendly to the President, namely the Republicans, the suggestion had been advanced that the real reason Mr. Roosevelt wants the convention postponed is that he is counting on a lucky break in the international situation which would prompt the delegates at the Democratic national convention to feel free to go ahead and draft him for a third term.

Incidentally, an idea was advanced here today which, on its face, sounds wholly improbable, but which is being suggested as a possible answer out of the many hypothetical answers being given to the third term riddle. It is that President Roosevelt could stay with the customary eight-year rule and still accept a third nomination by announcing publicly in advance that he would serve from January 20, 1941, to March 4, 1941, and then resign in favor of the vice presidential nominee, presumably the present Attorney General Robert H. Jackson.

Hitherto Presidents have had the privilege of serving eight years. But when a constitutional amendment has adopted changing the inauguration date from March 4 to January 20, the term of Mr. Roosevelt was curtailed by about a month and a half.

By permitting his name to go on the ballot, Mr. Roosevelt would allow, if elected, to be sure to carry along with him the man of his choice for the presidency and yet retire on the very day that his own eight years were completed. Such a scheme would, of course, be announced in advance so that the voters would know about it and approve or reject as the case may be. Clearly it would leave a vacancy in the vice presidency, if the ticket were elected, but this is not unusual. The Senate has many times selected a chairman pro tem to preside over the Senate sessions, if any presidential succession, if anything happened to create a vacancy when there is no vice president the office would go to the secretary of state. Quite recently there have been rumors from New Deal quarters that Mr. Roosevelt might consider being appointed secretary of state in the next cabinet if the Democrats were continued in power so as to give them the benefit of his advice and to preserve the continuity of policy.

The whole idea of a Roosevelt-Jackson ticket with a month and a half for one and a retirement in favor of the other would technically perhaps meet the third term argument, but it is not likely that it would ever be proposed by the President. Still, it is maintained, the plan to increase the number of Supreme Court justices by six was equally fantastic and nobody in political Washington dreamed of its being tried.

All these suggestions and weird plans are the result of speculation which the President unintentionally perhaps encourages because he has not disposed of the third-term talk. That he will do so at a time of his own selection soon after the forenoon election, this correspondent believes Mr. Roosevelt will not seek a third nomination and will indicate his disinclination to serve after which an active "draft Roosevelt" campaign will be begun that will not be settled till the convention meets.

Vegetable Group To Have Meeting

The Ulster County Farm Bureau vegetable committee has completed arrangements for a county-wide tomato and vegetable meeting to be held Tuesday, February 6, at St. Mary's Church Hall, Marlborough. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held, beginning at 9:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m.

Three specialists from the New York State College of Agriculture, have been secured for this meeting. Dr. Charles Chubb, plant disease specialist, will discuss new developments in the control of vegetable diseases, and will describe a new spray program for tomatoes.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 128—Jacob Leonard

Although she was a small vessel designed for the express purpose of a helper-craft, the towboat "Jacob Leonard" served its various towboats faithfully for almost a quarter of a century on the Hudson river and, like many steamboats that were built for other owners, she ended her career in the service of the Cornell Steamboat Company running out of the Rondout creek.

The "Jacob Leonard" was built at New Baltimore, New York, by J. Baldwin in the year of 1872. Her wooden hull was 128 feet long, breadth of beam of 28 feet three inches, and depth of hold of six feet three inches. She was built for use as a towboat and had a gross tonnage rating of 105 and a net tonnage of 55. Her means of propulsion came from a cylinder diameter of 34 inches with an eight foot stroke, and she was capable of rendering efficient service as a helper to the larger towboats—especially in the upper reaches of the Hudson river where the water was exceptionally shallow in places.

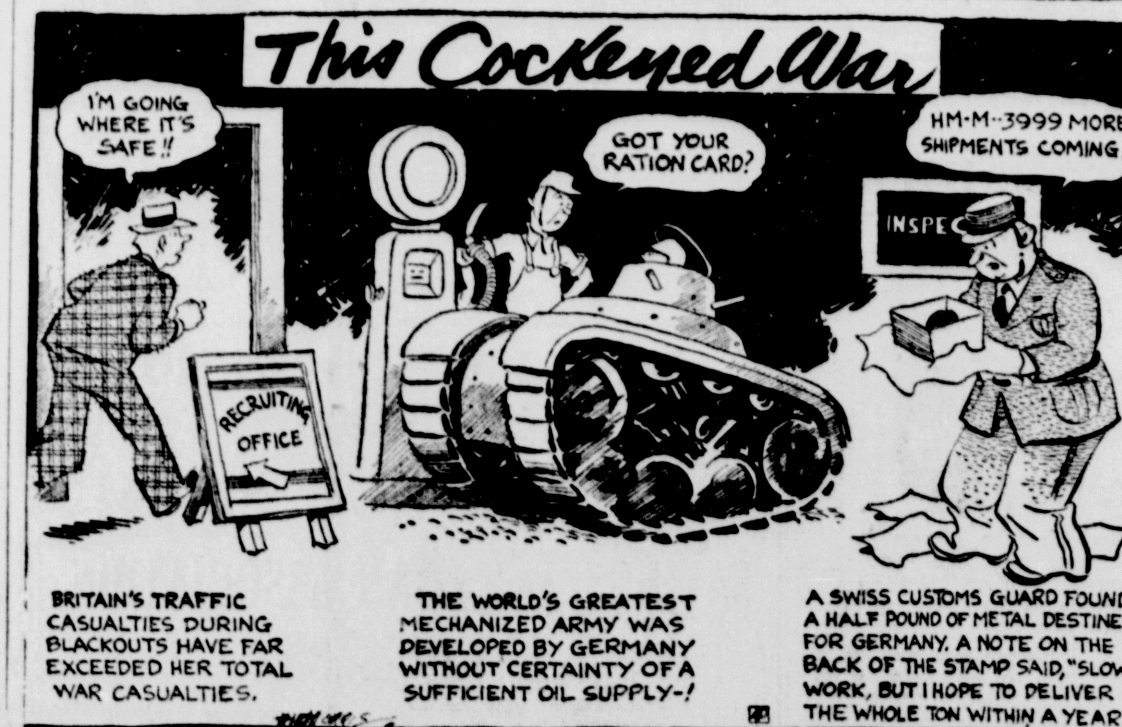

Several years prior to 1872, the date which marked the building of the "Jacob Leonard," Robinson Towing Line had formed the Troy Towing Line with towboats purchased from several operators including Commodore Van Santvoord who had formed the towing business to enter the field of passenger transportation on the river. The larger towboats of the Troy Towing Line, the "Columbia," "Alida," "Mount Washington," "C. Vanderbilt," and "Ontario," were experiencing difficulty in navigating the shallow waters of the upper Hudson river which often extended as far south as New Baltimore and Coxsack. And so the small towboat "Jacob Leonard" was constructed for the Robinson and Betts interests as a helper for the larger vessels.

When the Troy Towing Line closed its career in 1874, the "Jacob Leonard" was purchased by Samuel Schuyler who also acquired the towboats "C. Vanderbilt" and "Ontario" in the same deal. The "Jacob Leonard" was then used as a helper for the Schuyler fleet along with the two other smaller towboats, the "Garret E. Winants" and "Carrie."

In 1880-1891 the Beverick Schuyler Company purchased the "Jacob Leonard" and operated them until 1892 when the vessels were sold. The Cornell Steamboat Company of Rondout purchased the "America," "Niagara," "Syracuse," "Jacob Leonard," and "C. Vanderbilt," while the "Bell" and the "Garret E. Winants" were sold to Michael Moran, and the "Ontario" was broken up at Perth Amboy, New Jersey.

Thus the towboat "Jacob Leonard" joined the list of other rivercraft which were at one time or another in the service of the Cornell interests. She was brought to the Rondout creek and tied up at the dock directly across from the Gill warehouse, and she never turned a wheel again. In 1885 the "Jacob Leonard" was sold and broken up—ending a career that lacked only three years of completing a quarter of a century of service on the Hudson river.

Good Taste Today

Husband's Table Manners Win Arbitrator's Approval. Two to One—Scoop up Butter with Cracker Frowned on But Knife for Salad and Newspaper Reading Are Okayed.

Poor abused husbands! That is how I feel about them this morning at any rate, having in this past half hour read three letters each complaining about a husband! The first one likes to scoop up his butter with the edge of a cracker and his wife insists that this is bad manners and that he should spread the butter on his cracker with his butter knife. The second husband is evidently miserable because he wants to eat his lettuce with a knife and his wife won't let him have a knife. A third wants to read his paper in the morning and his wife says he has no manners.

It is almost too sad to write about! However, since I am asked to take sides, I hereby declare myself with two of them. But how to support the first one, who wants to scoop up his butter, is one of those finicking little things that do and don't matter, but in the same breath. I can't see anything so bad about this unless there are little children present, who have to begin by learning very best manners. In that case I think it would be a bad pattern to set.

About the salad knife, however, husband No. 2 is absolutely right. A silver-bladed knife for cutting salad is not only a useful implement but has always been correct. (A steel-bladed dinner knife is the tabu.) Husband No. 3, who wants to read his paper at the breakfast table, is also absolutely in the right, but I might suggest, however, that either he order a second paper or share it with his wife.

"Must a Brother be Best Man?"

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary for the groom to choose a brother for best man? I mean, is it a rule that a brother should be given precedence over any one else?

Answer: It is a custom, rather than a rule, but so generally followed that when the groom chooses a friend instead of a brother it does give the impression that very little affection exists between the brothers. A great difference in age would, of course, modify this impression.

Roosevelt Backs Administration' Record Against Critics With Figures

some good wisecracks have been passed, but after all, he said, you can drive a willing horse to death. When something is said, he declared, it will be at a time of his choosing and not of the choosing of newspaper editors.

He had an appointment at the White House today with members of the Democratic national committee, some of whom have been beating the political tom toms for a third term. But there was little reason to believe any of them would have any better luck than reporters in finding out how the Chief Executive stands on another term.

In discussing New Deal economics, Mr. Roosevelt said national income is going along at a rate of more than $70,000,000,000 a year. His goal, he said, remains $80,000,000,000 a year.

If that level were attained, he said, government expenditures for such things as relief would taper off, government income would rise, and the budget would be a little better than balanced. There are a lot of people, however, the Chief Executive went on, who prefer to pare down expenditures at once in such a drastic way that there would be a repetition of the recession which lasted from the fall of 1937 to the spring of 1939.

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY, Christine is surprised to learn that Lathrop, the man the police are trying to find, is married. Kincaid is interviewed and says that he loved Joan and that Richard MacDonald threatened to kill him.

Chapter 19 'I Loved Her'

I LOOKED around. The room made a queer confused picture. Richard, so pale and thin and tall, standing beside his uncle at the desk, and Mr. Kimball himself, very white, his bewildered blue eyes on the slumped figure of Harry Kincaid. Ishi, who had come in from a room in the back of the house, was leaning against the door casing. There was something disturbing in his gaze and the faint smile that curved the corners of his mouth.

Before them stood the Sergeant, silent and motionless. His eyes were on the floor. He seemed to be reflecting.

"You'll have to prove it," he said finally in a tired voice. "You're the only person so far who has refused to account for his actions."

The Sergeant, I thought, was stretching a point, but undoubtedly he had his own system.

Harry Kincaid raised his head. "I was here last night," he said, and the color crept back into his pale face. "I'll admit that, but I didn't murder Joan. I didn't even see her."

The Sergeant pulled his chair to the window and sat down. "What were you doing here, then?"

"I'd been to a show with a fellow and on my way home I stopped off here and thought I'd try to see Joan for a minute. He looked at the Sergeant almost apologetically. "She worked until ten, so she usually stayed up pretty late. I came upstairs and then I thought I heard someone coming in the street door. I thought it was him. He indicated Richard with an ugly look in his eyes. "There was no use getting in a fight, I thought, so I ducked into my old apartment. Didn't know it had been rented. Then she let out a screech." He glanced at me.

"Well," the man went on, "I had to go out in the hall again, but there was no one around. I knocked at Joan's door. She didn't answer. I stooped down and looked under the crack. There wasn't any light and the window was open. I could feel the draft coming from under the door. I thought she was in bed. I left then. I tell you, I had nothing to do with her murder."

The Sergeant's gaze swept the room, then he turned back to Kincaid. "Did you see anyone while you were in the house?"

"I didn't see who it was that came upstairs."

"When you left?"

He nodded. "I thought I passed the Rogers girl, but I couldn't swear to it. Anyway, it was a woman. She was coming in the house."

"Was there a light in the second-floor hall while you were there?"

"No, only on the third floor." He scratched his head. "I don't see how anyone could have seen me when I went into her room." He looked at me again.

The Sergeant rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "Mrs. Evans must be psychic," he said.

Dirck raised his eyebrows and looked at me with such an amused expression that I couldn't help smiling. Had Mrs. Evans' husband told her, I wondered, or could she see in the dark?

"Devoted To My Work"

"AND you saw no one else?"

"When I passed the shop I saw Mr. Kimball looking over some books in the front window." He pointed to the shelves.

The Sergeant swung around to Mr. Kimball. "Do you usually decorate your windows after midnight?"

The older man's face lighted. "I stay in the shop almost every night until twelve or after. I am devoted to my work."

"I see," the Sergeant said shortly.

But I thought he didn't understand. Mr. Kimball's scholarly regard for his books and his possessions would never penetrate the Sergeant's consciousness.

He turned back to Harry Kincaid. "Did you drop the cigarette lighter when you ran into Miss Howarth's apartment?"

Kincaid flushed and admitted that he must have dropped it somewhere in the house because when he got home he couldn't find it.

"Did you come back and take it from her room today?" The Sergeant went on tirelessly.

"No."

"Did you call Joan Kent this morning?"

The man stared at him without speaking.

"Answer me!"

He nodded dully.

The Sergeant's eyes narrowed. "And why didn't you tell Miss Howarth who was calling?"

shock." Then he added simply, "I loved her, you see."

For a moment I admired the man. He wasn't a particularly pleasant person, but he was entirely sincere in his affection for the girl. He went on in a hopeless voice:

"There wasn't anything I could do this morning, so I didn't come around. I knew I wouldn't be welcome here."

Even Richard, who had been regarding him with a hostile eye, was moved by this admission and Mr. Kimball raised his white head and eyed him pityingly.

"Where did you call from?" the Sergeant asked.

From a drug store in Times Square, Harry Kincaid told him. So the Sergeant slapped his notebook down on the desk and told him he could go if he would first leave his office address. Harry Kincaid got up, took a card from his wallet and handed it to the Sergeant.

"That will be all." The Sergeant seated himself in Mr. Kimball's chair at the desk.

Without a word or a backward glance the man walked quietly past us and out of the shop.

Dirck turned to look after him, then quickly bent his head close to mine. "We're going out," he said in a low voice. "When I speak to the Sergeant, put on your hat and coat. And fast, too."

Shadowy Forms

I LOOKED at him incredulously, but before I could protest he got up and walked to the desk.

"We're going out for a few minutes," Sergeant, for some cigarettes.

The Sergeant didn't even raise his eyes from his notebook. "Go ahead," he said.

Dirck came back to me. "You'd better put on your gloves," he said casually as I slipped into my coat.

"It's pretty cold."

I walked out of the shop with him, feeling very self-conscious. It seemed to me that Mr. Kimball and Richard were watching us curiously. What in the world did Dirck want to go out for? I knew it wasn't cigarettes, because there was a carton and a half in my room and his pockets were full.

The street was dark except for the faint glow of light from the corner. It was windy, too, and much colder. Mr. Norton had disappeared and there was no one watching the house. Dirck put his hand on my arm and, keeping close to the buildings, we hurried to the corner. He was bending forward and seemed to be looking for something down the street. And there on the corner under the street light I saw the shadowy forms of two people. A man and a woman.

It was Harry Kincaid, and the girl was Adrienne Wells.

They both looked up, startled, as Dirck spoke to them briefly and we walked into the Knife and Fork.

"Now then," he said quietly. "Get a carton of cigarettes while I make a call."

While I spoke to the man behind the counter Dirck hurried to the telephone, dialled rapidly and waited, tapping his foot with impatience. When he finally spoke, his voice was so low I couldn't distinguish the words. His face was grave as he came back and paid the man for the cigarettes. Then he glanced out of the window.

"We'd better wait a moment," he said.

I rested against the counter while he went outside and looked around. Finally he signalled me.

"I thought the Sergeant would be interested, so I called him," he said as I came out of the door.

When Kincaid left the shop Adrienne Wells was going up the steps to the front door. I saw her take him by the arm and I was certain we'd find them somewhere down the street.

He took my arm and we walked slowly back to the shop. "Chris, I don't want you to be frightened," he said, but there is something wrong about this house. I don't know what it is. But be careful, will you? I hate having you alone in that apartment. Joan Kent was murdered, and—" He hesitated.

I stood still and stared at him. "What do you mean?" I gasped. "No one will bother me. There is no reason for it."

"I don't know," I'm sure I hope not," he murmured.

I clutched his arm. "Why, Dirck, what makes you say this?"

"Listen, darling," he said. "You were too close to this to be healthy. Last night you were out in the hall and at the same time there was someone on the stairway." He hesitated and then added emphatically, "If that person was the murderer, he may think you saw him."

"Oh!" I shivered.

He drew me along beside him. "We'll go into the shop now," he said. "I'll try to fix things up later." Then he added sharply, "I don't want you to be alone tonight."

When we walked into the shop, Adrienne Wells and Mr. Kincaid were standing beside the desk and the Sergeant was leaning back in the chair looking up at them intently. Richard and his uncle were sitting close by and Ishi was watching us in sight. Dirck took my coat and we sat down on a low bench along the wall close to the open fire.

Ice Loses Hold

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 5 (AP).—The Mississippi river's worst ice jam this century loosed its frigid grip on steamer traffic today and freight-laden boats moved for the first time in 16 days. Vessels traveled cautiously, warily dodging floes whose white caps bobbed in the swift current. A ribbon of jagged ice, deposited as the broken jam moved southward yesterday, lined both shores from St. Louis, Mo. to Friar Point, Mass.

The people of the United States must rid themselves of this feeling of helpless resignation, and replace it with a firm determination to STAY OUT OF WAR, now and for the duration of the conflict. Let this determination be vocal and sincere, and no national leader will dare to attempt to force us into Europe's fights.

Serious-Faced Passenger—Ah, how little we know of the future and what it has in store for us.

The Other—That is true. Little did I think when, some 30 years ago, I carved my initials on the desk in the old country school that I would some day grow up and fail to become famous.

An Englishman touring Canada was staying in a wayside hotel. One night it was very cold and the Englishman, feeling it pretty badly, came downstairs early next morning to get warm. At the same time a trapper who had been out to look at his traps came in at the door. Icicles were hanging from his mustache. With a pitying expression the Englishman said: "I say, old man, which room did you sleep in?"

The chief salesman of a certain business firm had a very loud voice. One morning when the manager arrived at the office he heard a terrible noise coming from the salesman's office.

Manager—Who is that shouting?

Secretary—That's Mr. Hill talking to Chicago.

Manager—Well, tell him to use the telephone.

Dusky Sergeant (to local military unit)—Eyes right!

Voice (toward the rear of the ranks)—You're wrong.

They are teaching the men how to cook and sew in the universities now so they will be satisfied to stay at home with busy fingers and minds, while their wives take the nights out playing bridge. Some one has to keep the "home dough kneaded" and the holes in the socks mended if "domestic tranquility is to be insured."

A fat lady stepped on the scales, not knowing it was out of order, and put in her penny. The needle went up to 75 pounds and stopped. An inebriated gentleman who was watching intently staggered. "Great guns," he said, "she's hollow!"

There is occasionally a man who is a natural money maker. He'll make a little money wherever you put him. But he's by no means numerous. The natural and prevailing thing is not to have much sense about making money.

The franker we are with our friends, the fewer friends we have with whom to be frank.

Girl (in drug store)—Does this lipstick come off easily?

Clerk—Not if you put up a fight.

This will do for a yarn: Three explorers in the bush had no food and but one cartridge. They drew lots for the use of it.

The winner set off, but had not gone far before he was faced by two lions. He immediately fled back to the tent, hotly pursued by the lions. Just as they made their final spring, he stepped smartly to one side, allowing the lions to burst through the tent opening. Quickly he closed the flaps and shouted to his companions: "Start skinning these two while I look around for a few more."

Judge—Are you positive that the defendant was drunk?

Officer (growing)—No doubt.

Judge—Why are you so certain?

Officer—Well, I saw him put a penny in the patrol box on Main street, then look up at the clock on the Presbyterian Church and shout: "Wow, I've lost fourteen pounds!"

Local Man Gets Suicide Letter

Grief-stricken at the death of her husband, Harry S. Potter, on Sunday, Mrs. Lillian Potter, 60, committed suicide on Monday by inhaling gas in the kitchen of her apartment at 601 West 113th street, New York city.

Mrs. Potter left two notes, one for her brother-in-law, Fred Potter of Los Angeles, and the other for Nelson Abbott of Kingston, a friend of Mr. Potter who had been named executor of the estate. In her letter to Mr. Abbott, Mrs. Potter said that she wanted him to have all her household and private belongings.

Mr. Abbott, who had been notified of Mr. Potter's death on Sunday, was on his way down to New York from Kingston and arrived there Monday afternoon. He said that the Potters had been married for 40 years, and that they had gone to New York from Detroit.

Mr. Potter, 70, was an artist and illustrator. Plans had been made to send Mr. Potter to Los Angeles for a burial, but Mr. Abbott said that because of the death of Mrs. Potter he would wire Mr. Potter's brother for instructions as to funeral arrangements for the couple.

County Judge Frederick G. Traver convened the February term of county court at 2 p. m. Monday. County Clerk Robert A. Snyder's call of the jurors disclosed eight of the 36 on the panel not answering their names. One of these, Louis Lewis, of Woodstock, entered court later and gave as an excuse for not being present on time the necessity for looking after some machinery. The judge decided he was not wanted as a juror and excused him from service. Three of the panel, Lewis H. Carter of Shandaken, Helen Fairbairn of Hardenburgh, and Florence Markle of Hurley, were reported ill. Three others were reported not served and it was stated that Charles Tigar of Esopus was dead.

Excused by Judge Traver, upon their own requests, were Charles DeBarbieri of Marlbtown, Jacob DePew of Plattkill, Joseph Goldsmith and George Hoff of Wawarsing and Geraldine Mehrmann of Saugerties.

On the call of the calendar but 13 of the 60 cases were marked for trial and on an attempt to make up a day calendar none of those was found ready for immediate trial.

Judge Traver thereupon adjourned court until Tuesday morning, February 13, at 10 o'clock, at which time the criminal calendar of 44 cases will be taken up. Jurors in attendance upon the term of court were excused until that time. Judge Traver said that on the reconvening of court an attempt would be made to make up a day calendar of civil cases for trial after the criminal calendar was disposed of.

Before adjourning for the day Judge Traver heard testimony in a claim of Adolph Fornier, who testified that on November 12, 1939, his car was struck by a car driven by Clayton Christiana and damaged to the extent of $378. The claimant was represented by Attorney Embler of Walden, who questioned him as to the facts in the case and the amount of estimated damages.

Billy Conn Is Determined He Can Take Title From Louis

By GAYLE TALBOT

Miami Beach, Feb. 6 (AP)—Trying to talk Billy Conn out of the idea that he is destined to whip Joe Louis and return the heavyweight title to the white race is an absolute waste of time. The kid from Pittsburgh has made up his mind.

"He'll still be around when I'm ready for him," he insisted. "Sure, he's big. But he doesn't like to be hit, and just wait until I lay this right on his jaw."

I found the 175-pound champ working out in a sweaty gymnasium on the ocean front, starting to get ready for his title fight with Gus Lesnevich here on February 28. Having whipped Lesnevich once recently in New York, Bill didn't seem much interested in that phase of his future. He admitted casually that Gus could hit pretty hard, but the man he wanted to talk about was Joe Louis.

"You've seen how he looks when he gets hit," he persisted. "He looks like a big cry-baby, doesn't he? He doesn't know anything after he gets one on the jaw."

That was more or less correct. I was forced to admit. But how this Louis man can hit! How did Billy think he would bear up under a onslaught of Louis rights and lefts?

"He would have a lot of trouble hitting me," said Conn soberly. "That's part of this game—not to get hit. But I can take a punch. Fred Apostoli hit me a few, didn't he? I won't be scared of that guy when I get in the ring with him, like these other Palookas have been."

"Yeah, I've been a little sore getting started against some of these other guys. I knew what I was doing. But I won't start slow against Louis. I'll start fast, and I'll hit him plenty."

Louis and Godoy Finish Training For Friday Bout

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Champion Joe Louis and Challenger Arturo Godoy of Chile were today into the final stages of their preparations for the 15-round heavyweight championship battle here Friday.

Louis was to box six rounds with sparring mates today and another six Wednesday. Godoy was to wind up his hard work today and exercise only lightly until the fight.

While speculation increased as to the probable outcome, cagey Joe Jacobs, who has managed two fighters that have had title tilts with Louis—Max Schmeling and Tony Galento—gave Godoy a chance to stay the full 15 rounds. Although Jacobs is not a member of the Godoy entourage, he has watched the fighter and says "Arturo is all head and elbows. A rugged awkward mauler who is hard to hit."

"Don't forget he is a hungry fighter who needs money. He'll go into the ring with a desperate determination."

McCoy Must Pay Uncle Sam $11,000
... Mullens Do Some Stellar Pinning

High scorers in the Church Basketball League games at the Y. M. C. A. last night: Norton for Port Dutch with 12. Short for Port Ewen with 15. The Dutchmen won 31-25 on deuces by Jack St. John and Chappie Cooper in the last minute. Bobby Wojciechowski makes his debut with the White Eagles at their hall on Delaware avenue tonight. If he makes as many points as there are letters in his last name, there should be no question about the decision going to the Polish eagles. Tomorrow's Church volleyball slate at the Y. M. C. A.: St. Joseph's vs. First Presbyterians, 7 p. m.; Comforters vs. Fair Street, 8 p. m. Chuck Fenske is doing the mile a second faster than last year. Benny McCoy must pay Uncle Sam $11,000 out of the $55,000 he'll get from the Athletics. When Arturo Godoy isn't fighting he engages in the fishing trade in Chile. Remember what Joe Louis did to the fisherman who fought—Kingfish Levinsky?

Illinois Will Force Armstrong

Chicago, Feb. 6 (AP)—Joseph Triner, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, has recommended to the National Boxing Association that Henry Armstrong, welterweight champion, be forced to defend his title in a match with Milt Aron of Chicago.

The N. B. A. does not recognize Armstrong's defense of his title against Pedro Montanez at New York January 24 because the association did not list Montanez as a leading challenger.

Aron became a leading challenger for the 147-pound crown by knocking out Fritz Zivic of Pittsburgh here December 27.

Year's First Cross Country Ski Race at Williams Lake

The first cross country ski race to be held by a New York club this year will be the annual 18 kilometer run of the Telemark Ski Club at Williams Lake, on Saturday afternoon, if snow conditions permit. The meet is sanctioned by the U. S. Eastern Amateur Ski Association.

Among those who will take part are Gus Cornell, who was only a few minutes behind the eastern champion at Berlin, N. H., last year; Harry Wagner, former combined champion of North Germany; Carl Bergesen, winner of last year's run; Ingolf Helgesen, runner up to the 1938 combined champion of New York state; Gus Anderson, veteran Swedish skier, and Tom Andreassen, Rolf Dunheim, Egil Kornbrekke and Egil Hartmann Triksen, well known Norwegian runners. Among the officials will be J. James Young, of the St. Sauveur Ski Club of Canada.

Prior to the race a ski patrol unit equipped with white uniforms, army knapsacks and rifles similar to those now being used in Finland will perform drill formations to show the public how these units maneuver. The Telemark Club will give a dinner for the competitors after the 12-mile run in the Ulster county township, just below Kingston. A Sauna, of Finnish steam bath, has been prepared for the use of several polar bear swimmers who will break the lake ice to amuse the spectators.

Invitations have been sent to the Brattleboro Outing Club, Chisholm Ski and Outing Club, the Dartmouth Outing Club, Hudson Valley Ski Club, Norfolk Winter Sports Association, Phenicia Ski Club, Sno Bird of Lake Placid, Salisbury Outing Club, Staten Island Ski Club, Nansen Ski Club, Norwist Ski Club and many others.

Kingston Hopes To Preserve Its 39-Game Streak

Kiasmen Count on Victory To Fortify Them for Port Jervis Game Friday

Coach G. Warren Kias and his Kingston High School "two-point" basketball varsity engages in its third non-league game this evening at the Municipal Auditorium with the rugged quintet from Poughkeepsie High. Game time is 8:15. Tommy Weems' Jayvees hook up in a preliminary match at the 7:15 bell.

Poughkeepsie, with a couple of veterans returning for action this year, will be tough for Kingston to crack. And, with the game out of the DUSO League standings, the Kiasmen are particularly pointing for this fray with one thing in mind—that of continuing their 39-game winning streak at home.

Coach Kallio's Blue Raiders will have but one regular in harness tonight, Tom McDonald. But working with the vet will be Johnny Ross, Gifford Seaman, Roy Stoothoff, Gus Siko, Marshall Dallo and Shooter Moran.

In triumphing Ellenville last Thursday, the Kiasmen made it seven in a row for the season and nine games for complete campaign including all exhibition tilts. Kingston continues to seek a "quick kill" for the coveted honor of recapturing the cup on Friday of this week when it travels to Port Jervis to meet the Red and Black Raiders, recent victims of a Liberty bombshell.

In seeking another victory tonight Kias will use Harry "Meal Ticket" Flowers, Bob Curran, Ray Lindhorst, Milt Dubin and Bill Strubel in the starting array.

Tin Roof Treatments

Most roofing authorities recommend that the tin roof be painted immediately upon installation and every two years thereafter. In cases where galvanized sheet metal is used, the roof should not be painted for at least six months after installation, as this period of conditioning is necessary to free the surface from acids which otherwise may tend to loosen the paint. Peeling paint should be removed with steel wool, sandpaper, or a wire brush before new paint is applied.

Authority Sees Danger in Trend Of Law Teaching

Professor I. Maurice Wormser, who for some 20 years past has been a member of the faculty at Fordham Law School, and a practicing attorney since 1908, whose services as an expert have been in demand in many important cases, was the speaker at the meeting of the Ulster County Bar Association held at the Stuyvesant Hotel Monday night.

The meeting was largely attended and members heard Professor Wormser decry the increasing trend of the part of law schools to entrust their teaching to "theorists," instead of to men who have had practical experience in the meaning and practice of law. This lack of instruction from men who have had training not only from books but from life itself, who have acquired a sound legal philosophy, was seen as having far from good results.

Still more unfortunate was seen to be the perpetuation of these unsound philosophies, now being taught, through appointments to high places in the judiciary.

Great fundamentals were seen as being slowly but surely undermined. Ultimately such a process was viewed as resulting in people losing faith in courts and lawyers, with its final effect being the destruction of democracy.

Another result of the present trend was to make it difficult for practicing attorneys to advise their clients on points of law, in these days when precedent doesn't mean anything.

Discussing the need of maintaining faith in the courts and in the lawyers, the speaker asked that the great majority be not judged by the delinquencies of the few. Because one lawyer, or one judge, fails to live up to the standard was no reason, he said, why the entire bar should be condemned as unworthy of confidence.
